After three years of illegal occupation of Crimea by Russia, the Woodrow Wilson Center of the Kennan Institute hosts a discussion of a new book by three noted experts on the subject.

The annexation of Crimea has transformed the Russian Federation. Three years of economic stagnation, international sanctions, and unstable oil prices have all had their effect. Within the government bureaucracy, power struggles are underway with new plans to address Russia's post-Crimean reality. The editors of this book will analyze some of these trends and try to provide a road map for the workings of Russia after Crimea. Speakers Anton Barbashin, Co-founder and Managing Editor, Intersection Vladislav Inozemtsev, Austrian Marshall Plan Foundation Fellow, Center for Transatlantic Relations; Director, Centre for Post-Industrial Studies Olga Irisova, Co-founder and Senior Editor, Intersection
