From Dutch News.NL, Nov 14, 2017; Pieces of bone found in the vicinity of the MH17 plane crash in eastern Ukraine contain DNA material from seven of the victims, the Dutch justice ministry is quoted as saying by news agency ANP on Tuesday. The bone fragments were handed over to the Dutch forensic institute for analysis last month by the Ukraine authorities. In total, 15 of the 23 fragments were found to have human DNA, and eight of those were traced to people who died in the disaster.
