Mladic was not in court at the time his sentence was read out. He had been removed earlier for shouting at the judges.

From BBC News, Nov 22, 2017 Former Bosnian Serb commander Ratko Mladic has been jailed for life for genocide and other atrocities in the 1990s Bosnian war. Known as the "Butcher of Bosnia", Mladic led forces during the Srebrenica massacre in 1995 and siege of Sarajevo in which more than 10,000 died. The UN tribunal in The Hague convicted him on 10 of the 11 charges. Mladic, 74, was not in court when the sentence was read out. He had been removed for shouting at the judges. The judges had rejected a request by his lawyer to halt proceedings because of Mladic's high blood pressure. [⋮] <http://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-42080090>
